

HISTORICAL RESEARCH RECRUITMENT

Lesbians' and queer women's experiences of donor insemination in England between 1970 and 2000

ARE YOU...

- A queer woman who has used donor insemination?
- Have you helped a queer woman with donor insemination?
- Was it in England at any time between 1970 and 2000?

If you answered yes to these questions, then this project is for you!

I WOULD LIKE TO INTERVIEW...

- A) lesbians and queer women who used donor insemination before the year 2000
- and B) anyone who helped queer women with donor insemination (this may include but is not limited to: helping a partner or friend; health professionals working in public or private settings; sperm bank staff; activists and campaigners)

These oral history interviews form part of a PhD research project that aims to recover the experiences of queer women who have used donor insemination in various ways, including self insemination and artificial insemination by donor (AID).

This project has ethical approval and funding from the University of Cambridge.

Please email the researcher to find out more

Ellen Bridson
eb897@cam.ac.uk